When Things Go Bad

Firefighter Rescue & Survival Training with Physiology of Self Preservation

This course is designed for both entry level and veteran firefighters and has been embraced by some of the most respected fire organizations nationwide. The instructor will focus on the psychological and physiological responses from the body when under survival stress and how perseverance is extremely common under certain stress levels but not always beneficial. The course is all classroom supplemented with videos and case studies that tie together traditional R.I.T & survival drills. Instructed by subject matter expert Lieutenant Paul Capo, founder of When Things Go Bad, Inc.
